Death anxiety is pervasive in many patients, family members and healthcare professionals. This program describes the nature of death anxiety, its impact, ways to effectively cope with end-of-life issues, and how we can use death anxiety to live more fully.

Participants including health professionals working in medical, dental and behavioral health settings should be able to:

1. Identify key characteristics of death anxiety.
2. Describe Terror Management Theory and its alternatives.
3. Distinguish between adaptive and maladaptive forms of coping concerning death anxiety.
4. Name several brain areas that contribute to death anxiety.
5. Outline ways to help ensure that patients receive the kind of end-of-life care that fulfills their directives.
6. Describe how to channel a death anxiety into life-affirming choices and experiences.

ABOUT THE INSTRUCTORS

John D. Preston, Psy.D., is Professor Emeritus with Alliant International University: California School of Professional Psychology, Sacramento and formerly on the faculty of UC Davis School of Medicine. Dr. Preston is the author of twenty-two books addressing psychotherapy, mood disorders, neurobiology, and spiritual aspects of emotional healing. His books have been translated into 14 foreign languages. An outstanding speaker, Dr. Preston has given invited lectures to health professionals throughout North America and in several continents. His presentations are at once informative and inspiring.

Tom Nickel, Ph.D., is a cognitive psychologist and instructional designer. He has been extensively involved in the planning and administration of mental health services and the development of training programs for mental health professionals. He has served as a volunteer caregiver for the Kaiser Permanente Hospice program and currently serves with the Zen Hospice Project. He has also developed an online curriculum, "An Instructional Design for Dying." Dr. Nickel's presentations are both informative and deeply transformative.

Policies and Procedures
