Contact your school district if you need prior approval.

Acquire an in-depth understanding of how conscientious eating can help reduce inflammation, curtail stress-related eating, lessen anxiety, elevate mood, improve sleep, and protect the aging brain.

Health professionals working in medical, dental, and behavioral practices completing this new 6-hour program should be able to:

1. Identify how diet affects stress, mental health, and appetite.
2. Describe the link between inflammation of the GI tract, anxiety and mood, and anti-inflammatory foods.
3. Discuss how conscientious eating can help protect the aging brain.
4. List conscientious eating habits that can calm an overactive brain.

Conscientious Eating and Inflammation

- Understanding Inflammation: the mind-body connection.
- Foods That Have Anti-Inflammatory Properties
 - Corticosteroids: EPA/DHA, vitamin E, quercetin, turmeric.
 - Nonsteroidals (NSAIDs): ginger, tart cherries, turmeric.
- The Most Anti-Inflammatory Foods: the Dietary Inflammatory Index and curcumin (curcuminoids), tea (catechins), cocoa (epicatechin), chili (capsaicin), garlic (allicin), and selected vegetables, fruit, grains, and legumes.
- Gut Bacteria Contribute to Anxiety and Mood: most serotonin and dopamine are synthesized in the GI tract; role of impaired bacterial balance.
- Probiotics and Prebiotics: healthful bacterial strains that can help reduce low-grade chronic inflammation related to anxiety and depression.

Stress, Mental Health and the Brain

- Choline-Rich Foods: acetylcholine and short-term memory.
- GABA-Rich Foods: anxiety, relaxation and sleep.
- Protein-Rich Foods: tyrosine, norepinephrine and focused awareness.
- L-tryptophan-Rich Foods: serotonin, mood, appetite and sleep.
- Diets and Mental Health: effects of diets high in fat (ketogenic), protein (e.g., Atkins), carbohydrate, or fiber; intermittent fasting; benefits of limiting refined carbohydrates.
- Stress-Related Eating: emotional suppression, hostility, depression, adrenal hormones, insulin, and appetite.
- Stress-Inhibiting Nutrients: selected vitamins (e.g., B12), minerals (e.g., magnesium), amino acids, and fats (omega-3s).

Protecting the Aging Brain

- Chronic, Low-Grade Inflammation: neuroinflammation and minimal cognitive impairment; inflammation contributes to and is perpetuated by amyloid and tangles, hallmarks of cognitive impairment; reducing risk of stroke and Alzheimer's disease.

- Nutrients and Cognition: choline, green tea; dose response of alcohol that is neuroprotective or neurotoxic.
- Neuroprotective Nutrients: anti-inflammatory foods are rich in antioxidants; low levels of vitamins D and B12 are risk factors for Alzheimer's disease; curcumin can improve working memory.
- The MIND Diet: combining the DASH (low sodium) and Mediterranean Diet lowers risk factors for Alzheimer's disease.
- Limiting Refined Carbohydrates: preventing microvascular complications of diabetes and protecting the aging brain.
- Slowing the Aging Clock: each tick of the aging clock results in loss of chromosome-protecting telomeres in the brain and body; how diet affects telomere shortening.
- Sleep: sleep deprivation, memory loss and diet.

Developing Conscientious Eating Habits

- Psychobiology of Mental Control: habits that inhibit cravings (orbitofrontal cortex), improve motivation (cingulate cortex), improve planning and impulse control (lateral prefrontal cortex).
- Appetite Regulation: glucose-regulating fiber and resistant starches; selected proteins, e.g., whey and casein; almonds, black pepper, chili, coconut, fenugreek seed, kokum, oregano, pomegranate, and turmeric—a fact check.
- Optimizing Anti-Inflammatory Foods: added health benefits when combining spices and other anti-inflammatory nutrients with low-glycemic, appetite-regulating foods that are filling and fulfilling.
- Mindful Eating: staying calm in the present tense rather than tense about the future can improve impulse control and enhance enjoyment of eating.
- Prioritizing Sleep: how the regular timing and content of meals normalizes the circadian rhythms and promotes restorative sleep (stages 3 and 4); tryptophan- and melatonin-rich foods.
