ABOUT THE INSTRUCTOR

Robert F. Krueger, Ph.D. is the Distinguished McKnight University Professor in the Department of Psychology at the University of Minnesota. Dr. Krueger is an expert in the development of a new generation of diagnostic methods for disorders of personality and other forms of psychopathology. He worked with the American Psychiatric Association to help develop an alternative method of understanding and diagnosing personality disorders (the DSM-5 AMPD).

An outstanding instructor, Dr. Krueger presents information with clarity, enthusiasm and warmth. Participants will receive a detailed outline that includes key lecture topics, references, and an opportunity to take a self-test that incorporates advances in interpreting psychological symptoms.
