ABOUT THE INSTRUCTOR

Sally S. Dickerson, Ph.D., Professor of Psychology, Pace University, is an expert in how people respond to stressors. Her research has found that stressors characterized by social threat can lead to changes in inflammation and cortisol, a key hormone associated with chronic stress.

Dr. Dickerson integrates her knowledge of the stress response with evidence-based stress management practices, including yoga and meditation. She is a certified yoga teacher (RYT-500) and breath coach, and incorporates the application and practice of these techniques in her presentations. Dr. Dickerson has served as a Program Director for Social Psychology at the National Science Foundation.

An outstanding and award-winning instructor, audiences appreciate Dr. Dickerson's special ability to translate key research concepts and findings into non-technical yet practical terms and demonstrate their applied application. Health professionals highly commend her presentations for their clarity, enthusiasm, and warmth. Participants receive a detailed outline developed by Dr. Dickerson that includes all lecture topics.
